from the most mundane practices of everyday life to those of the most powerful corporate actors contemporary understandings of gender emanate from a large community of primarily feminist scholars that spans the gamut of learned disciplines and also includes non academic activist thinkers however while in incorporating some cross disciplinary material this volume focuses specifically on socio logical theories and research concerning gender which are discussed across the full array of social processes structures and institutions as editor i have explicitly tried to shape the contributions to this volume along several lines that reflect my long standing views about sociology in general and gender sociology in particular first i asked authors to include cross national and historical material as much as possible this request reflects my belief that understanding and evaluating the here and now and working realistically for a better future can only be accomplished from a comparative perspective too often american sociology has been both tempero and ethnocentric second i have asked authors to be sensitive to within gender differences along class racial ethnic sexual preference and age cohort lines in this pathbreaking book a well known feminist and sociologist who is also the founding editor of gender society challenges our most basic assumptions about gender judith lorber views gender as wholly a product of socialization subject to human agency organization and interpretation in her new paradigm gender is an institution comparable to the economy the family and religion in its significance and consequences drawing on many schools of feminist scholarship and on research from anthropology history sociology social psychology sociolinguistics and cultural studies lorber explores different paradoxes of gender why we speak of only two opposite sexes when there is such a variety of sexual behaviors and relationships why transvestites transsexuals and hermaphrodites do not affect the conceptualization of two genders and two sexes in western societies why most of our cultural images of women are the way men see them and not the way women see themselves why all women in modern society are expected to have children and be the primary caretaker why domestic work is almost always the sole responsibility of wives even when they earn more than half the family income why there are so few women in positions of authority when women can be found in substantial numbers in many occupations and professions why women have not benefited from major social revolutions lorber argues that the whole point of the gender system today is to maintain structured gender inequality to produce a subordinate class women that can be exploited as workers sexual partners childbearers and emotional nurturers calling into question the inevitability and necessity of gender she envisions a society structured for equality where no gender racial ethnic or social class group is allowed to monopolize economic educational and cultural resources or the positions of power although the two intertwined at first the contributions of these settlement women to the development of the administrative state have been largely lost as the new field of public administration evolved from the research bureaus and diverged from social work camilla stivers now shows how public administration came to be dominated not just by science and business but also by masculinity calling into question much that is taken for granted about the profession and creating an alternative vision of public service
